BBC presenter Sophie Raworth announced the winners of the inaugural Chelsea and Westminster Star Awards, organised by Chelsea and Westminster Health Charity, at an awards evening held at Chelsea Football Club.

Almost 800 nominations were received for the Star Awards from staff and patients which included 17 Staff Choice awards, a Patient Choice award, the Council of Governors Special Award and the Chief Executives Special Award; sponsored by Linea Group.

Heather Lawrence, Chief Executive of Chelsea and Westminster NHS Foundation Trust presented the Special Award sponsored by Linea Group, to Consultant Anaesthetist Dr Neil Soni in recognition of his long service and outstanding contribution to patient care; research and teaching in critical care within the hospital and nationally.

Heather Lawrence said, 'It was an honour and a privilege to be at Chelsea Football Club last night for the first Chelsea and Westminster Star Awards evening when the winners of our new annual staff awards scheme were announced. It was humbling and very moving to hear the winners describe their emotions about being recognised in this way by their colleagues, patients and our Foundation Trust Governors. To hear staff talk with such passion about improving patient care, and with such pride about working at Chelsea and Westminster, was an absolute joy'.

Ian Chambers, Chief Executive of Linea Group said, 'The awards are a great opportunity to recognise the effort and commitment of the Trust's staff. Linea Group is proud to sponsor the Chief Executives special award which acknowledges Dr Neil Soni for his outstanding contribution to the Trust and Healthcare in general'.
