Tell us a bit about the type of work handled by the department you're in at the moment.

I am part of the IT department within the Trust. They are responsible for the provision of IT services across the Trust. This includes infrastructure and clinical systems.

What are the most enjoyable aspects of your job?

The fact that no day is ever the same is something I really enjoy. The project I am working on has the potential to provide better services and save significant money and this gives me a great sense of satisfaction.

What was your first job?

After leaving university my first job was in an Information Analyst in an NHS Health Authority. This role involved extracting and analysing health care data to support service planning. The information was used to support decisions on the services to be provided in two major acute hospitals.

What skill would you most like to have?

The skill to have been a professional footballer!

What's your greatest business achievement?

Deciding to leave a full time role and work as a contractor. It was something I had thought about for many years but kept putting off, but then one day I thought 'right I need to make a change', so I found a contract and quit my full time job. I have been doing it for 3 years and have never looked back.

What did you want to be when you grew up?

An adult! And I am still working on it. On a more serious note I would love to have been an astronaut.

List 5 words that describe your character

Sociable, loyal, funny, team player.....modest!

What are your interests outside of work?

I enjoy watching and playing football and for my sins have a season ticket for Norwich. In the winter I enjoy skiing but not sure if that is for the skiing or the après ski (probably both). I enjoy travelling and would love to have the time (and money) to travel a lot more.

What's the best piece of advice you could give someone?

Listen to other people, consider what they say but make up your own mind
